Refugee Process

Make a refugee claim in Canada Submitting completed Basis of Claim (BOC) and other forms IRCC.

Admissibility process

Not Eligible

You can usually apply for Pre-Removal Risk Assessment (PRRA).

You could also apply for a Federal Court review the finding that your claim is ineligible

Eligible

Once your claim is eligible, it will be referred to Refugee Protection Division (RPD) of IRB.

Refugee Process

Kids can attend school

Claimant may apply financial help

Claimant may apply language studies

You have to take medical examination

Work Permit arrives

Meeting for supporting documents

A hearing at the RPD will be scheduled. This can take many months. Some claims can be decided without a formal hearing.

Review and probably second meeting for supporting documents

Training 1
- Audio
- Video
- Instructions

Training 2
- Instructions
- Simulation

Training 3
- Instructions
- Simulation

Hearing date

Claim Refused

Claim Accepted

Check if you have the right to appeal to the RAD

Appeal to the Refugee Appeal Division (RAD)

If no right of appeal to the RAD, may be a Federal Court review

You may apply for a Pre-Removal Risk Assessment (PRRA)

Apply for permanent resident status